Conjugate addition of aryllithium to styrene: enantiodiscrimination with chiral phosphoric acid. Treatment of achiral styrene with (R)- or (S)-1-phenyl-1-phenylethyllithium in the presence of (S)- or (R)-bis(triphenylphosphine)oxazoline as a catalyst afforded the corresponding aryllithium stannates (S)- and (R)-[2,2',2' ',2''-tetrakis(triphenylphosphine)oxyacetophenone-1'-stannyl]. These reagents were found to be efficient for the enantiodiscrimination of aryllithiums with phosphoric acid. Among the aryllithiums tested, (S)-1-phenyl-1-phenylethyllithium reacted relatively more rapidly than (R)-1-phenyl-1-phenylethyllithium with phosphoric acid, and the subsequent enantioselective addition with (S)- and (R)-1-phenyl-1-phenylethyllithium provided enantiomerically enriched stannane (S)- and (R)-[1-(phenyl)eth-1-yl]phenyl(R)-stannane-2,2'-diyl-bis(triphenylphosphine) over 9 days. The present method was found to be applicable for the enantiodiscrimination of aryllithiums prepared by the Grignard method.

as mentioned in a review above, the beautiful music is not so much cutting the grass as it is digging a path for it..... Logged Ron "The question isn't whether you can take a step, but whether you will."Bob Buford This is a very nice, but short piece. IMO, a perennial favorite. I'd have to disagree with choosing one of the prolific composers' garden compositions over that of one of your own. I think you're much better than that. There's plenty here, and if you're going to choose, I'd say the Symphony works up to the challenge in this selection. If by "my own" you mean one of mine, I have two selections, one of which was my favorite first few years ago. (Back then I didn't have this CD lying around, so I used the master I had of a soundfile on my computer.) As I have grown to like the CD better, I seem to have found more to like, and in fact I have a lot more to like on here than I did.
